PHILLIPS LYTLE ATTORNEY MARC W. BROWN APPOINTED TO KADIMAH SCHOOL OF BUFFALO BOARD OF TRUSTEES

BUFFALO, NY – Marc W. Brown, an attorney with Phillips Lytle LLP, one of the region's best known law firms, received a presidential appointment to serve on the Kadimah School of Buffalo Board of Trustees for a three-year term. Mr. Brown is a 1987 graduate of the school.

Established in 1959, the Kadimah School of Buffalo provides students in kindergarten through eighth grade an education that addresses both general and Judiac studies and integrates them into a program that develops intellectual capabilities, religious awareness, social conscience, physical and mental health and personal integrity.

At Phillips Lytle, Mr. Brown concentrates his practice in the area of litigation pertaining to real property title claims defense and real property tax certiorari proceedings, products liability and consumer product safety, personal injury, contractual disputes, toxic torts and collection enforcement. A member of the American, New York State and Erie County Bar Associations, he earned his J.D. from University at Buffalo Law School and both a M.B.A. and B.A., cum laude, from Binghamton University. Mr. Brown also serves on the board of directors for the University at Buffalo Law School Alumni Association and also on the Steering Committee for Binghamton University Harpur College National Alumni Law Advisory Council.

Phillips Lytle LLP, one of the region's best known law firms, is celebrating its 175th anniversary in 2009. The firm has seven offices across New York State in Buffalo, Albany, Chautauqua, Garden City, New York City and Rochester. With the farthest geographic reach of any law firm in the state of New York, Phillips Lytle is well equipped to meet the needs of their clients.
